Motivation

Why did we think that the topic of FAFH warranted its own multi-chapter report? (... several reasons)

1) Complement to America’s Eating Habits: Changes and Consequences (1999)

2) Observed changes in the way food is eaten and prepared which may have impacts on nutritional intake and health outcome

3) Emerging food policies aiming to change FAFH offerings (e.g., menu labeling)

Notes: FAFH = food away from home. Restaurant = full-service restaurant (with wait staff). Fast food = restaurant with counter service only. Higher income defined as household income above 185 percent of the federal poverty level. Lower income defined as household income at or below 185 percent of the federal poverty level.

Awareness and Use of Nutrition Information at Full-Service Restaurants

- Ate at full-service restaurants:
  - Rarely/never dark green veggies at home: 86.1%
  - Always/most of the time dark green veggies at home: 88.3%

- Saw nutrition information:
  - Rarely/never: 9.9%
  - Always/most of the time: 17.6%

- Used nutrition information:
  - Rarely/never: 19.1%
  - Always/most of the time: 54.9%

Concluding Remarks

1. Americans eat more FAFH
2. Variability in FAFH use (e.g., by income, education, SNAP)
3. Fast food seems to be an “equalizer” across income distribution
4. The Great Recession decreased FAFH consumption
5. Efficacy of menu labeling not known yet
